

University placement service

Why study in the UK?

The British University system is one of the oldest and most prestigious in the world and is synonymous with quality. British degrees are recognised internationally. Universities welcome international students and offer a huge variety of courses from which to choose in a huge variety of locations from small bustling towns to large metropolitan cities. A centralised organisation, the Universities and Colleges Admissions Service – UCAS, administers all applications to bachelor's degrees making the entry process smooth and efficient. For master's degrees application is directly to the universities of choice.

What do I get if I use the University Placement Service at Concorde International?

Expert one-to-one personal counselling.

Guidance throughout the entire application process.

Two competitively priced pre-university courses to prepare you for university level work.

Free internet and email facilities, university open lecture programme, group and one-to-one counselling, CD-ROM library of information, university prospectus library, regular visits from university admissions staff, university open days and careers fairs

Flexibility of application dates

Placement in a range of prestigious institutions

Over 10 years experience in placing foreign students in U.K. universities

Over 33 years experience in helping students reach English language goals and adapt to new cultures

Orientation and counselling to prepare you for success at the university.

Guaranteed university entrance with successful completion of our pre-university courses (and appropriate credentials, of course).

Do you need more information or want to apply?

Contact a <Concorde Advisor> today!

University placement service

UK Academic Culture

It may take some time for you to adjust to studying in the UK. Academic culture and expectations can vary according to the subject, the level of study and the type of institution. However, there are some general trends that you may notice in the UK:

Students often work independently, studying on their own for significant periods of time. Students are expected to develop critical judgement, which means an ability to assess whether an argument is coherent and well supported by evidence.

Learning large amounts of factual data is important in some subject areas, but in many cases a critical approach is considered more important.

Many UK students will also be going through the process of learning the conventions of academic life. Our study skills classes, an essential part of all our Pre-University Programmes, will help you to understand what is required.